Opera Singer

"I'm really getting into vintage-inspired details this season," says Danielle Birrittella, 25. "But I can't be bothered to commit to any particular era—because I'm influenced by so many right now." As a result, the L.A.-based, classically trained opera singer has amassed a hodgepodge of flirty warm-weather finds ranging from Victorian-esque lacy tops to 1950s-style jumpers, which she mixes and matches freely. "I don't necessarily subscribe to the theory that you should stick to one decade per outfit or even one major piece," explains Birrittella. "Putting them all together keeps me feeling ahead of the curve."
