By SHEILA McCLEAR

If you're young and fashionable, what do you get your equally fabulous power-girl friends who already have it all? The newest and shiniest baubles that they haven't seen yet. These gifts are sure to cause a smile for the holidays.

GET CARDED

Zac Posen's couture holiday card may be the only Posen you can afford. The designer teamed up exclusively with Tiny Prints on an original watercolor holiday card. Proceeds benefit New Yorkers for Children. Customizable with a name and photo, it's $21.30 for the minimum order of 10 at tinyprints.com. Turnaround is about two days, so there's still time to order.

CHARM AID

Colorful Juicy Couture charms and key chains will add whimsy to her life. Charms, $42 to $58; key chains, $48 to $68; charm box (without charms), $68.

FLIRTY DOZEN

Birchbox is a luxury sample subscription service, to be had for the price of Netflix. For $10 a month, it'll send your gift recipient an adorable little box of sample-size beauty items, plus an e-mail with tips on how to use them. You and your awesome present will be remembered 12 times over. $10 a month, or $120 for a full year, at birchbox.com.

IN THE FURST PLACE

Nothing says "sexy young career gal" like a piece from Diane von Furstenberg. Get your most ambitious gal pal a DVF "Adra" washed-silk scarf in royal leopard green that'll add a little swing to her step. $98 at dvf.com.

RING IT ON

If no one's "put a ring on it" yet, give your single girlfriend an excuse to wear bling the classy way with this pavé-style Coach lavender enamel ring. She'll look like way more than 100 bucks! $98 at coach.com.

USE YOUR HEAD

The pouf makes anything festive, and is perfect for your serial-dater friend — you know, the one with multiple dating-site memberships. The "Blair" headband will take your look from day to night faster than smoky eyeliner. $12 at shopthelook.net.
